POSITION OF THE UNITED STATES
WITH RESPECT TO SENTENCING FACTORS

COMES NOW, the United States of America, through its attorneys, Chuck Rosenberg, United States Attorney, and Jay V. Prabhu, Special Assistant United States Attorney, and in accord with 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) and the United States Sentencing Commission, Guidelines Manual, §2B5.3 (Nov. 2004), files this Position of the United States with Respect to Sentencing of CHRISTOPHER E. EAVES (1:07cr140). The United States believes that in this case the Sentencing Guidelines establish a reasonable sentencing range that appropriately accounts for each of the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) and requests that the Court sentence Defendant CHRISTOPHER E. EAVES to a sentence at the low end of the 12-18 months advisory Guidelines range.

I. BACKGROUND

As set forth in the Presentence Report and the Statement of Facts, the Defendant was a member of an Internet pre-release music group called "Apocalypse Crew" or "aPC." The Defendant has acknowledged that he did willfully enter into an agreement with one or more individuals for the express purpose of unlawfully reproducing and distributing copyrighted materials via the Internet. Defendant also acknowledges that, through the acts of himself and others in the conspiracy, aPC caused the reproduction and distribution over the Internet of copyrighted works with a total infringement amount of more than $30,000 and less than $70,000.

On May 14, 2007, the Defendant pled guilty to a single count criminal information of conspiracy to commit copyright infringement, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 371. On that date, the Court accepted the defendant's plea of guilty to the information.

In this case, there was both an agreed-upon statement of facts and a plea agreement. In the statement of facts and before the Court, the Defendant admitted his unlawful conduct. Based on this record, the Presentence Report calculated that the Adjusted Offense Level for the defendant's conduct was 13: Sentencing Guideline 2B5.3(a) provides for an offense level of 8 for criminal copyright infringement; Guideline 2B5.3(b)(1)(B) provides an additional six-level upward adjustment for an offense with an infringement amount greater than $30,000, but less than $70,000; and Guideline 2B5.3(b)(3) provides an additional two-level upward adjustment for an offense involving the uploading of infringed items. In the event that the government files a motion with the Court for a Section 3E1.1(b) one-level reduction and assuming the Defendant receives the two-level reduction for acceptance of responsibility, the Defendant will have an Offense Level Total of 13. The Presentence Report further calculates that the defendant has a Criminal History Category of I. With an Offense Level Total of 13 and the Defendant's Criminal History Category of I, the advisory Sentencing Guidelines range for the Defendant is properly calculated as 12-18 months.

II. APPLICABLE LEGAL STANDARDS

Although the Supreme Court rendered the federal Sentencing Guidelines advisory in United States v. Booker, 125 S. Ct. 738 (2005), “a sentencing court is still required to ‘consult [the] Guidelines and take them into account when sentencing.’” United States v. Clark, 434 F.3d 684, 685 (4th Cir. 2006) (quoting Booker, 125 S. Ct. at 766). The Fourth Circuit has held that, “[c]onsistent with . . . Booker, a district court shall first calculate (after making the appropriate findings of fact) the range prescribed by the Sentencing Guidelines. Then the court shall consider that range as well as relevant factors set forth in the guidelines and those factors set forth in [18 U.S.C.] § 3553(a) before imposing the sentence.” Clark, 434 F.3d at 685-86 (emphasis in original) (quoting United States v. Hughes, 401 F.3d 540, 546 (4th Cir. 2005)); accord United States v. Green, 436 F.3d 449, 456 (4th Cir. 2006).

Ultimately, the sentence imposed must meet a standard of reasonableness, see Booker, 125 S. Ct. at 765, and as the Fourth Circuit has recently stated, “reasonableness is not measured simply by whether the sentence falls within the statutory range, but by whether the sentence was guided by the Sentencing Guidelines and by the provisions of § 3553(a).” Green, 436 F.3d at 456. Although the court of appeals has cautioned that “[a] sentence falling outside of the properly calculated Guidelines range is not ipso facto unreasonable,” it has stressed that “a sentence imposed ‘within the properly calculated Guidelines range . . . is presumptively reasonable.’”¹ Id. (quoting United States v. Newsom, 428 F.3d 685, 687 (7th Cir. 2005))

(emphasis added). The appropriateness of the presumption of reasonableness for sentences that were consistent with the advisory Sentencing Guidelines was recently affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court in Rita v. United States, 127 S.Ct. 2456, 2463 (2007).

III. ARGUMENT

A. A Sentence at the Low End of the Guidelines Range Is Appropriate And Reasonable In Light Of the Serious Nature Of Defendant's Criminal Conduct.

There can be no question that the defendant engaged in serious crimes that harmed individuals and businesses; in fact, the total infringement amount attributable to the conspiracy of which the Defendant was a member is over $50,000. Given the nature of the defendant's criminal conduct and the impact and the harm to the public, the United States believes that a sentence of incarceration at the low end of the applicable Sentencing Guidelines range would account reasonably for the seriousness of his crimes and to provide just punishment. See 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(2)(A).

B. A Sentence at the Low End of the Guidelines Range Would Provide An Appropriate And Reasonable Deterrent Factor.

In addition, sentences within the applicable Guidelines ranges are appropriate and necessary to provide the requisite deterrent factor. See 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(2)(B). A significant sentence is necessary in order to establish an appropriate deterrent for the defendant and for others. In addition to punishing the defendant for his actions and deterring him from additional criminal conduct, it is important to send a strong, clear message as a matter of general deterrence that intellectual property thieves will be punished and that the punishment will be significant.

With respect to 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(6), which deals with sentencing disparities, the government would note for the Court that there have been a number of sentences of co-conspirators of the Defendant who had the same advisory Sentencing Guideline range. First, a split sentence of six months incarceration and six months home detention issued by U.S. District Court Judge Claude M. Hilton. See United States v. Aaron Jones, 1:06CR41-1. The government acknowledges that Mr. Jones was an even more active participant in the music piracy group than was the Defendant, despite the fact that he had an identical Sentencing Guidelines calculation. Second, Judge Hilton sentenced another similarly situated co-conspirator to eight months of home confinement. See United States v. Alan Brown, 1:06cr41-21. Third, U.S. District Court Judge T.S. Ellis, III sentenced another similar co-conspirator to a jail sentence of 45 days with an additional 45 days of community confinement. See United States v. Michael Kekelis, 1:06cr254. Most recently, this Court sentenced Arthur Gomez (1:07CR125) to 6 months home confinement and 40 hours of community service.

As indicated in the statement of facts, the Defendant was willing to cooperate with the Government and provided a full and truthful debrief with the FBI. PSR at ¶ 21 (Clause 10). However, his information did not amount to substantial assistance under Rule 5k1.1 or Rule 35. Id. Several of his co-conspirators have received motions for reductions in sentence for their substantial assistance. Two co-conspirators who became active cooperators against defendants in other FBI investigations received probationary sentences with periods of community service. See United States v. Mark Shumaker, 1:03cr326 (J. Lee); United States v. Jonathan Reyes, 1:07cr48 (J. Brinkema). A third co-conspirator who was an active cooperator in an unrelated case received 6 months of home confinement. See United States v. Jason Patton, 1:06cr249 (J. Hilton). Another cooperator received a sentence of 1 month in prison and three months of community confinement. See United States v. Bruce Huckfeldt, 1:06cr304 (J. Ellis).

Finally, there were two other co-conspirators in this investigation who received "minor" and "minimal" role reductions (Matthew Howard and Derek Borchardt) in 1:06cr41. U.S. District Court Judge Claude M. Hilton sentenced these individuals to 10 months home confinement and 6 months home confinement respectively.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, the United States requests a sentence at the low end of the 12-18 months Guidelines range for the defendant on the sole count of the criminal information.
